How visible is your compliance?

As national laws and regulations increase in complexity, organisations are required to demonstrate a greater level of compliance than ever before across all aspects of their business.

Compliance in many forms includes assets, safety, financial, and people, often operating independently from one and another, making cohesive visibility to you and your employees difficult to achieve.

Why achieving compliance can be a challenge

Information is often contained within separate systems and software, team members, and paper based documents retained locally.

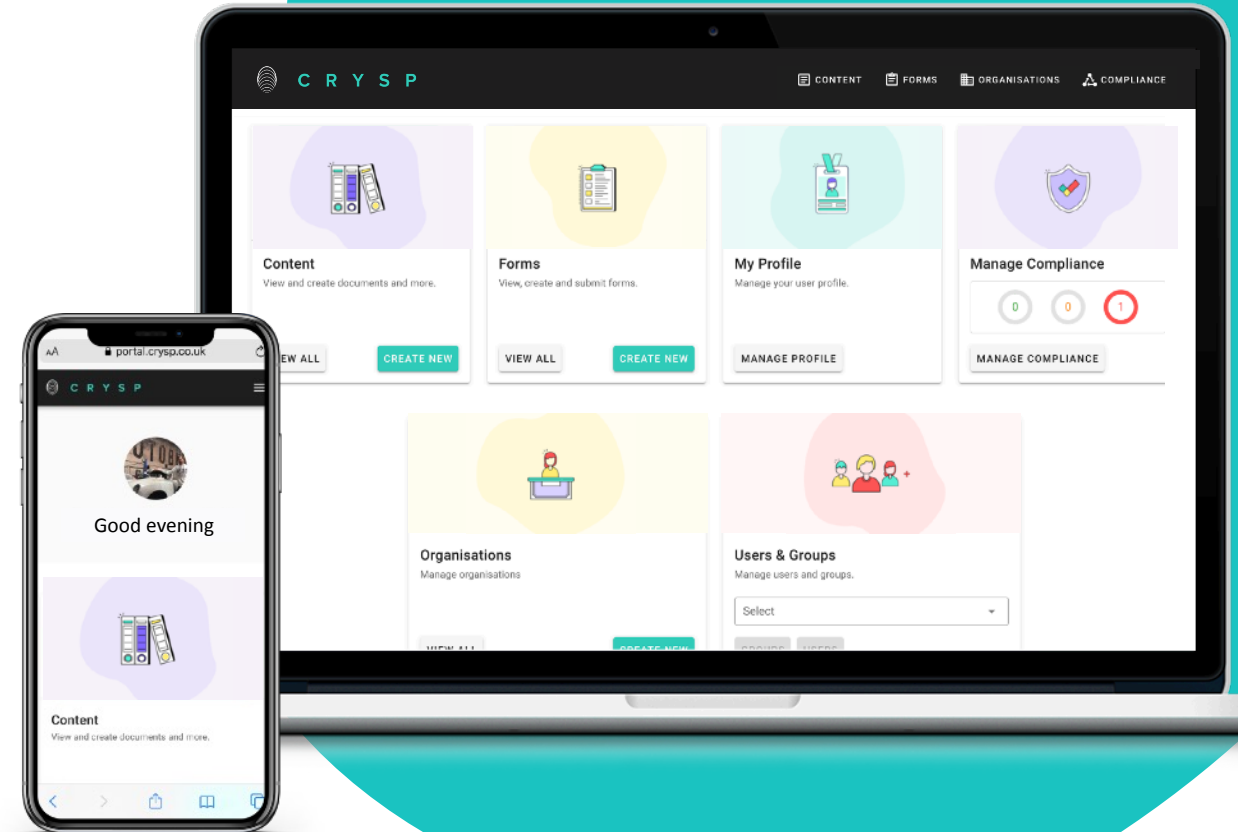

This could make compliance difficult to manage especially where visibility is critical to others for the safe running of the organisation.

Tech wizardry and compliance practitioners come together

With Crisp we have created a true digital platform to empower people to centralise and manage effectively an organisation's compliance.

Integrating professionals in both compliance and IT with the directors of Crisp having over 50 years experience enabling them to understand what your challenges could be.

Thanks to Crisp we now have total visibility of all of our health and safety and local country statutory documents, training records, risk plans and much much more for all our European stores, outlets and concessions.

JIMMY CHOO

We required complete visibility of our property portfolio. Crisp has cost effectively revolutionised the way we manage this process giving everyone inside the organisation visibility to all the information when they need it

Ensuring our people are safe across multiple locations is paramount. Having real-time information on all of our risks and how they are being managed by our people is invaluable. I would recommend Crisp to any property or compliance professional.
